The London Times

April 23, 2023

Hello fellow collectors of watches, clocks and just about everything else that goes along with that. It's time to get busy and get back to meeting with all of our old friends, along with welcoming some new ones that will be attending for the first time. We will once again be meeting at the Royal Canadian Legion at 2500 Veterans Drive in Mount Brydges at 9:00 am. Setup for vendors at 8:00 am. Coffee and cookies will be provided.

We will once again have our world class, well almost world class, silent auction, where you can sell your unwanted items and end up with someone else's unwanted stuff. Bring along clocks, watches, parts, books, some money and have fun. Speaking of money, we have two meetings paid for from before Covid, therefore we will not be collecting any dues until the fall. Dues for the upcoming year will be dependent on lining up a brand-new executive. So be prepared to step up and volunteer for one of the many positions that are required to keep our club on course.

Since we haven't met for so long, the theme for our display will be a favourite purchase that you made in the last two or three years that you'd like to share with the group. Could be something amazing, or just something plane and simple. A clock, a watch, a tool or some handy gadget you picked up could win you a prize worth hundreds of dollars, or a lot less. Likely a lot less, but still a prize.

I have a short presentation on Horology in Art and Photography as well. If you have any sort of a print, painting or old photo with a clock, watch or building with a clock you'd like to share with the group, please bring it along.

Hope to see you on the 23rd. If you can get there early and help set up tables, make coffee etc., it would be appreciated. If you need any more information, or have questions, let me know.

I wish you all a very Happy Easter and enjoy the sun. It's been a while.

A few pictures from our last meeting.

Looks like I may be in trouble again.
